What you can and cannot claim in your tax return as a medical resident

can claim

(All expenses claimed must have a direct link to the job title on your employment contract)

- RACP Fees
- Medical courses and conferences
- Tertiary courses. E.g. Masters of Medicine
- Textbooks and journals related to Medical training
- AMAV membership

cannot claim

(Anything that cannot be linked back to the job title on your employment contract)

- Tertiary courses such as a Masters of Public Health for the purpose that you may want to explore hospital administration down the track.
- Conferences, courses or exams related to a separate medical field. E.g. Surgery or Psychiatry. You may be boosting your CV or upskilling in order to move across to a different medical field.
- Application fees to medical colleges other than RACP.

WALSHS